++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Murky with outbreaks of rain.

This Evening and Tonight:
Outbreaks of rain slowly clearing north through the first half of the night, with a second band pushing into the south during the second half, this heavy at times. Staying murky in between with low cloud and hill fog. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Saturday:
Rain spreading across the country with some heavier bursts, leading to a cloudy and damp Christmas Day. Some snow for higher parts of Snowdonia. Windy; particularly gusty across the west. Maximum temperature 9 deg C (48 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Early rain on Boxing Day clearing to the north with showers and brighter interludes following. Drier with some brightness on Monday. Cloudier again on Tuesday with rain possible later.
